

Salvation Army Drive Canvassers Well Received

THE MAIN SUPPORT

No town is stronger than the support given it by its own public, or the faith that public shows in its leaders. The citizens are boosters and take pride in the fact that they live there and in its appearance. It has a solid foundation of business, which is the backbone of the city and investors. It will catch the eye of the prospective home buyer. It would be a good place to live.

But if it has a lack of honest leadership, it faces of apathy. Its progress is likely to be threatened.

Civic duty is a civic duty. Edmonton is now at the cross-roads. The hard times are past. The need for the most important civic improvements in the last ten years exists no longer. It is time Edmonton took stock and made some very necessary permanent improvements. Every section of the city must be considered in the planning of these improvements to effect. Edmonton must take the lead. The city should take stock of its present condition and then plan to meet the needs of the future to a community's prosperity.

Civic duty is a civic duty. Harry has given the lead.

It is up to the public to make improvements. It is up to the public to see that he is given the means to carry out this policy.

It is up to the public to see that he is given the means to carry out this policy.

The Bulletin feels that Edmonton will get behind this much needed program for the betterment of the city. Let's go. Edmonton.

New Industries and Stores to Be Located in City

Work on the construction of a new garment store to be built by Great West Garments Co., factory at 10350 87th street will be undertaken in November. The cost of the addition which will cost $5,000 will be borne by the firm. The store will be built on the 10th floor of the T. Eaton Building, by Mr. J. H. Parney contractor, on behalf of Charles L. Eaton, president of the Great West Garment Co.

Another new store, 10350 87th Street, and several other permits calling for the expenditure of $100,000 have been issued this fall which should send the year's total building figures up to more than $2,000,000.

Building contractors and dealers in builders supplies are looking for another big building year for Edmonton in 1928, and indications are that activity will again be marked in the last few months of 1927 will be even greater next year according to these authorities.

Locating of new industries and stores will be the chief factor in more home building they state.

Contractors Expected

Concerned with the recent come renewed rumors that the T. Eaton Company will move its entire plant to a large scale in Saskatoon, will also come to Edmonton. Some reports have been taken on a large block on Jasper Avenue, just west of the Separate schools, and as that was stated that the T. Eaton Company was weighing all options. Other rumors connected with the plant.

INQUIRY INTO ENGINEER'S DEPT.

Will be Rushed Says Mayor

Only Delay Caused by Absence of Commissioner D. Mitchell in East, His Worship States

Major A. U. G. Bury broached the subject Monday night regarding the inquiry into the death of the engineer in charge of the bridge, the council in October demanding an investigation into the city engineer's department when he descended the platform of the bridge before leaving for the East, and requested that the matter be held in abeyance until his return.

"All the matters will be dealt with extensively by the Commissioner immediately he returns," Mayor Bury said.

There was considerable good-natured chaffing when the idea of holding the inquiry at the present time was mentioned.

Mr. Bury's statement was denied by the engineer in charge of the bridge, who declared Alderman Baker "that is not true. I was there and I certainly declared against it" and the remaining members of the council together with Mayor Bury laughed.

VEGREVILLE DISTRICT THRIVING

ARMY WORKERS 'GO OVER TOP' IN BIG DRIVE

Campaign to Raise $50,000 for Capital Expenses
Off With Swing

While no official report as to the progress of the Salvation Army campaign has been received, the business at the Royal George hotel at 12:30 Wednesday morning showed that the organization workers that the participation of canvassers were accepted by the Vegreville citizens today.

At 8 a.m. this morning several battalions of the Salvation Army workers were over the town to accomplish the first objective of the drive to obtain $50,000 with which to carry on the good work of charity and relief with in this city. The campaign will end Saturday, Nov. 19.

The drive for purposes of the drive has been divided into zones and in each zone a detachment of the army is carrying out its advance.

On the first day of the drive have been under way for the past two weeks by local army officials in association with the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Holmes, campaign organizer, and the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Rich, head of the Salvation Army. Western Canada, chairman of the entire campaign committee of approval on the plans.

With Commissioner Rich in attendance the battalions of the Salvation Army on Armistice Day, and many other prominent citizens, the campaign holding the holiday on Monday was opened with a great fanfare.

It was stated that the Armistice came into effect—Armistice Day.

The campaign for purposes of the drive was charged with a conspiracy to bring former Crown Prince Carol back to Romania and to restore him to his right of succession to the throne.

The arrival of the formal delegation of state was greeted with tremendous cheer.

The card on the cards that the C. G. A. will nominate a full slate of candidates for the election next month will be held but this matter has been left in the hands of the men who were over there.

On the first day of the campaign the school board will probably be made available for the use of the school children while holding with today at the Royal luncheon meeting at the Royal Canadian Legion hall.

As one ex-soldier paid it on an acquaintance group at the campaign luncheon, "I think the money we could have to return to the throne for that end of the war?"

The reason given was that any man who has been spoken to about the campaign has been cheated out of something to have him not be at all surprised to see a name of liberty in the name of some scheme to be put into effect.

As one ex-soldier paid it on an acquaintance group at the campaign luncheon, "I think the money we could have to return to the throne for that end of the war?"

PEACE HATH HER HEROES

The finest traditions of the Edmonton force were enriched by the action of Constable Tom Adams when he walked straight into a fusade of bullets in the dark hours of Sunday morning to grapple with a burglar. Tom Adams is a man who goes more than the sympathetic of the law-abiding people of the community in his fight for life. He has also the admiration of every man who wants law to prevail and who has imagination enough to sense the circumstances of the case. Good wishes can put him on his feet, Constable Adams will be tramping the beat again before many weeks have passed.

THE ARMY'S DRIVE

Moral and social conditions in a modern city could not be bettered on an normally wholesome basis without the preventive, conserving and reclamation services of the Salvation Army. The activities of this organization run all the way from providing places of refuge for homeless children and houses suitable to that of re-establishing the dependents with whom the policies courts have to deal.

Operations over such a wide range cannot be carried on without the expenditure and therefore the collection—of a considerable amount of money for running expenses. They also involve in their line in getting the investment of large sums in buildings and equipment which are necessary for these services.

The Army is this week conducting a drive for funds, for the specific purpose of putting up a new building in Edmonton, plant, and of that reducing the amount of the interest, and carrying charges. These at present absorb a large part of the ordinary collections which could otherwise be used for carrying on and extending the work of the Army.

The objective is $30,000, rather than half the capital indebtedness on the buildings and equipment. If this sum can be raised the proportion of the annual collections which have to go to meet carrying charges will be cut in half, and this money made available for other purposes for which the organization exists.

The subscription, it may be noted, is not for the benefit of the Army, nor of anyone connected with it. And to what extent it is successful, the beneficiaries will be the unfortunate who come to Army minsters, and the public, for whom conditions are made better because these services are rendered. Should it fail—it would be the unfortunate and the public who would suffer.

There is no exception to the rule that a city needs the services of the Salvation Army. Nor can the city afford to have the efforts of this organization crippled by lack of the machinery with which to carry on its operations effectively. The appeal for funds with which to cut down the indebtedness, and to build up on its properties, is one which should meet with a very general and a very generous response.

A TIMELY TOPIC

Hon. C. H. Dunning drew attention, at the Ottawa conference, to one phase of the rail situation in Canada which is a time that some heed was given, and which is illustrated by the position of the E.D. & C. in Alberta and the P.G.E. in British Columbia.

The premises, Mr. Dunning stated, insist upon either right to build railway undertakings, or by assistance given to private parties. When the railways turn out to be profitable the provinces—or the private owners—keep them. When they turn out to be money-losing ventures the provinces invite the Dominion to take them off their hands and kick them onto the National system.

If that is not very flattering to the provinces, it has the merit of being the unvarnished truth. With the exception of Prince Edward Island, and perhaps Newfoundland, every province in the Dominion has dallied in railway-building. In every case where the results have been satisfactory the provinces—the companies they backed—got the benefit. In every case in which the enterprises turned out otherwise there was or is a demand that the Dominion shoulder the burden.

There is no profit in ensuring what has been done in the past. But the Ottawa conference might have accomplished something of very practical and very real benefit to the public welfare if the Canadian provinces had approached this problem and come to some sort of agreement which would have been accepted as a working maxim for the future. What seems clear as a general proposition is that either the Dominion should do all the railway building in Canada, or that the provinces which insist on doing it in the business should stand the losses as well as pocket the profits on their ventures.

A "heads we win, tails you lose" attitude on the part of the provinces is not fair, either to the Dominion, to the National Railways, nor to the taxpayers of Canada.

Great Stories

By ERIC E. GUEST

One time I told a giant tale before she went to sleep. But now when evening comes I tell her fairy tales.

"A story shouldn't frighten her."

You know, I often like to talk of giants."

mother said.

This giant has an ugly face with whiskers just like wire. He wears a mountain top, and keeps a blazing fire.

And one night I chattered him.

And told her how they captured him.

A story not just suitable when little girls retire.

For in the night she was a shriek and and when the trouble was, of course, I hurried in to see.

"This ugly face is near," she said.

An awful dream which mother says should never never ever happen.

So fairest tales at night I tell of pretty hills and dales and up and down the hills and on the bony mountain trails.

I know I mustn't frighten her,

but I must tell her the truth.

But strange to say that little miss still begs for giant tales.

The River of God

By DR. FRANK CRANE

In former days when I was living in Chicago I wrote some hints to Jane Adams, which I have often been asked to repeat. I will do so.

"There is a river the streams whereof I went through death to find the thing and all through Heaven I found.

"Now, Heaven's a wide and wonderful place, but I am not quite as wide as we. So I came back home in sorrow and thirst, and there one said to me:

"'Oh, fool, you have traveled far to find water, but you have traveled over time and again for the river of God is in Hallelujah Street, and it runs black with men.'

"Then maybe Chicago's the city of God?"

"'No, you're not fit to go to heaven. For to find that city you need no wings to fly.'

"'For, low, in the river the river sings'

For it waives the joys of living and living

That grows in the hearts of the poor.'

"I built me a home in the city same."

"'With a roof that leaks and a floor that gives way'

And there I sit pensively the tree of life,

And teach the children to play.'

"'And ever I sit here in the river, but it does not drown me, for I have a silver cord

And fill the golden bowl.'

118 ARE LOST; RESULT LOSS OF SHIP

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 12.—One hundred and eighteen lives are estimated to have been lost in the shipwreck of the Tukaram, of 280 tons, plying between Bombay and the port of Javant, owned by the Bombay Transport Co., which owns the owners of the Tukaram. The three days of the accident.

The Tukaram, carrying 48 passengers and 84 sacks, sank within three minutes during a squall on the west coast of India. When no news was received yesterday the owners sent agents to search for survivors. Of 18 survivors who were found 16 were taken to the port of Javant, 60 miles south of here, where two boats came to their rescue. A man was slightly recovering from injuries received in the accident, but most of the captain. The dead and missing total 118 and there are 100 survivors. The bodies were sent to search for the Javant, which left Bombay on Oct. 26. There were more than 180 passengers and three days overdue.

THIS IS HAPPENING

After the police had arrested several suspected persons, Vance promised to solve the mystery himself. He worked up hypothetical cases against all those he suspected, and then turned them over to Shred— to prepare them for trial. He then began to search for the real murderer. He takes Markham to Major Benson's office to speak with him.

CHAPTER LIV

When the boy had left us, Vance turned a pleading gaze upon Markham.

"Now, old man, for the protection of society and the greatest man in the world, and the greatest good for the greatest number, and you're a good man, I would like to think you would once more do a thing that you must once more do— whatever your prompts— or whatever the advice you used to take. But, I want you to think it over again or a moment."

"Certainly," said Markham, "you're telling the truth."

"Come my Markham. There's no danger in telling the truth. And— and snuff! at this hour... And— and snuff! cackling!" he promised.

Markham was vexed in his remonances, but Vance was unmoved.

"I have you completely lost your sense of humor, Mr. Benson," he said, closing the last drawer.

He opened a small table containing a few odds and ends, rifled its contents.

"There's here," he murmured indifferently. "The clothes-closet is the only other place."

Going across the room, he opened the closed door. Unhurriedly he stepped into plain view, lay an arm belt with a bulging pocket over his shoulder, and stood in the doorway.

Vance often let it be extreemly plain that he was not bedded in the living-room. On the right-hand wall was a doorway leading into a narrow passage-way which extended straight out. Over the doorway, on the right of this passage-way, was the entrance to the bedroom.

He stepped directly back into the living-room. On the right-hand wall was a doorway leading into a narrow passage-way which extended straight out. Over the doorway, on the right of this passage-way, was the entrance to the bedroom.

"There's one very important cloak-room, Mr. Benson. And there is the pitcher in which the boy put the gun when he left the room."

"Going to the window he shamed down the barrel. Then, withdrawing it, he held it."

"You see— eh? what?" Even the noise of the barrel is immediate.
